Terminology

This section is intended to clarify standard audit terminology in the context of a public transit agency since audit and public transit terms can be similar and sometimes overlap.

Internal Control: A process effected by an entity's oversight body, management, and other personnel that provides reasonable assurance that the objectives of an entity will be achieved. It is a dynamic, iterative, and integrated process in which the five components (control environment, risk assessment, control activities, information and communication, and monitoring) impact the design, implementation, and operating effectiveness of each other. Internal control objectives and related risks can be broadly classified into one or more of the following three categories:

- Operations – Effectiveness and efficiency of operations
- Reporting – Reliability of reporting for internal and external use
- Compliance – Compliance with applicable laws and regulations

Internal Control System: A continuous built-in component of operations, effected by people, that provides reasonable assurance – not absolute assurance – that an entity's objectives will be achieved.

Operational Processes: Processes that define the primary activities an organization needs to perform in order to successfully execute its business. Operational processes represent essential business activities that accomplish business objectives.

Performance Audit: Independent assessment that provides objective analysis, findings, and conclusions to assist management and those charged with governance and oversight with, among other things, improving program performance and operations, reducing costs, facilitating decision making by parties responsible for overseeing or initiating corrective action, and contributing to public accountability.

Safeguarding of Assets: The effective stewardship of public resources against unauthorized acquisition, use, modification, or disposition. Public resources include, but are not limited to, cash, securities, inventories, equipment, information systems, and data.
