Over 17,000 customers have provided BART with valuable feedback on the design of the new train cars via email, surveys, and public events. We are pleased to bring you another opportunity to check out the Fleet of the Future design. New train car builder Bombardier Transportation has built a life-sized model of the interior and exterior of approximately half of a train car for public viewing. BART would like you to walk through and tell us what you think. Your observations will help define the BART experience for years to come.

New Features

By popular demand, the new cars will be:

- Quieter: “micro-plug” doors will help seal out noise
- Cooler: cooling systems will distribute air directly to the ceilings, making it more comfortable for standees on hot days
- Comfortable: padded seats will have lumbar support and will be covered with wipeable fabric for ease of cleaning
- Easy to use: routes will be color coded like the BART system map, and next stop information will be readily available via automated announcements and digital screens

New train cars will be phased into the existing fleet beginning in 2017. The Fleet of the Future will meet a 66% Buy America standard, and final assembly will be done in the United States. BART’s goal is to order 1,000 new train cars, increasing the number of seats in the fleet by approximately 38% to alleviate crowding during peak periods.
